“ Mom, God gifted me with something which I did not deserve, or see coming. I was put in position to be your caregiver when you fell ill. A job I never wanted, or thought that I could do. I was terrified and felt so alone when we first started. I prayed that "Thy will be done", and I called upon God above to use me for whatever HE had desired. To chronicle our whole journey would be impossible here in this space. When the end of your journey on Earth was upon us, I knew. I prayed that God take you, not in the pain you felt, but peacefully. I prayed for comfort and tranquility for you. No fear. I am grateful to God that in your final hours, you were comfortable, and peaceful. I wanted you to feel loved, and never alone. You never were alone. Jesus held your hand the whole time, and I, like I told you, was the "fungus" that hard as you may have tried, could never shake loose.

I know you are in that forever now. You are reunited with the family and friends that you knew and loved, and some that you never knew. One thing to be sure of, we will all be there with you.

You are (as I have told you countless times) God's precious child. Thank You for being the best patient, the best Mom that you could possibly be. I can honestly say that I was given a great gift.
