“ Dear Patti and Candace

I am so saddened of the passing of one of my oldest friends, Duie! I have so many memories that make me laugh, and some that actually bring tears. Duie was an usher in my wedding to Jan in 1958. On the wedding day, he asked me to his home, supposedly to make a sign for the wedding vehicle. Out came the vodka, and, fortunately, it was early enough in the day, that I somewhat sobered up by the ceremony. I just recently heard of this, as I was in and out of the hospital for major back surgery. I also was just told about Brian. My God, Patti, I hope some supreme power helps you through this.

*My love and prayers to you and Candace,
Mickey Cook*

“ Over the span of a lifetime, you don't run into too many human beings like Brian. He was extremely generous, funny, intelligent, knowledgeable and able to talk with anyone about just about anything. He did Human really, really well.

If Brian considered you a friend, you by God knew it. He would do anything for you, many times without telling you. When I had heart surgery, he came and hijacked my newly purchased (with his help of course) 51 Chevy and replaced the gas tank (full of jellied gas) for me because he wanted it to be ready for me when I got home. I hope I was as good a friend to him as he was to me.

I didn't know Brian and Tracey before they got married but I do know it took a special woman to tame The Beast that was the younger Brian. We had plenty of discussions about the young Brian over coffee at Starbucks. Brian respected Tracey immensely and the strength and calmness she brought to their relationship. Watching the two of them together helped you understand the meaning of "soulmate." They had each other's backs.

And if Brian had your back, you were in a pretty good place.

When Beau came along, I got to watch his transformation into one of proudest daddies I've ever seen. I would receive a new batch of Beau videos about every two weeks. He absolutely relished the idea of making sure that she turned into a little Brian, which was an easy task since she got the Brian genes; truly his Mini-Me. It breaks my heart that he won't be able to see that through, but he's laid a pretty good foundation for that happening. She will be a Force for the world to reckon with.

I wish you Godspeed and smooth sailing, my friend. I'll miss you deeply and the world will be a bit darker for not having you in it. My deepest condolences to Tracey, Beau, his parents and everyone lucky enough to have him as a friend.

“ My most sincere condolences to the Dumont Family. This is just unreal to hear, Brian was such an awesome person, I'm at a loss for words ! Our conversations from cars to guns to his beautiful daughter, and whatever - he was such a wealth of information and just a Wonderful man. I'm proud to be able to say he was a great friend. May he Rest In Peace, he and his family are in my prayers.

“ Brian and I were best friends in grade school. We fell out of touch during high school but randomly met again as two guys racing on the highway just because we liked each others' car. I was honored beyond words to be invited to his wedding. Have only grown to respect and appreciate him more over the years. What an amazing person. My heart breaks for his family. Such a tragic loss.

I first met mr Brian when I couldn't even drive I was riding my bike up the hill and out of the corner of my eye I saw this beautiful white bmw. So I stoped and talked to him and instead of telling me to go away we stood there and talked about all of his cars. Over the years I grew to like him more and more each day he was a funny guy and I loved his stories. I guess that's why he became a uncle to me. I'm gonna miss him a lot and I will cherrish the memories I have of him forever and always. He was a wonderful man a amazing father and a beloved husband.

Hello, I sold a 1992 eagle talon. The car was white with a red interior. My friend sold the car, and the gentleman's email that he sold it to was tnomod@yahoo. The guy emailed him back, showing pictures of the car with things that he had done to it in the background, there is a super nice white BMW. Would you happen to know if he own it ?
