“ Charlie was my neighbor growing up. I remember breaking my arm on a skateboard. He wrapped it up, sent me with a neighbor to The Miller clinic. They commented on how good of a job he had done. Military training, there wasn't anyway my arm was going to come loose. Charlie had a workshop. Hanging up above, you would see soap box derby cars, which he had made. Charlotte used to have races. He had two red Irish Setters that would run the fence as you went by. Beautiful dogs! Charlie would come in the house with that gruff voice, “what are you doing” as we ate popsicles that Mitzi had made. That was his way of saying he liked you. I didn't really figure that out until later. When one day he walked in the Barber shop. He wanted me to cut his hair. He had a head full of it too! He would come in the shop after that and give us all a hard time and you had better give it back. He loved it! If you got him good he would say “now wait a minute” in that deep gruff tone. Customers always enjoyed Charlie, as did we. I feel very blessed to have gotten to know Charlie as an adult. I was his barber. He was my friend. We all will miss him. Brad, Matt and family, may GOD comfort you and give you peace. David Hood

“ Charlie was a wonderful and patient roommate to my father at Pelican during the last six months of his life. They say you can learn a true man's character during their last months. In my time seeing my father several times weekly, I would always spend time with Charles. He never complained and was always kind to my father, who can be a bit difficult. I will miss our conversations about his being a Drill Sargeant in the Army and how much we both love dogs. Charlie will be greatly missed by me, dad, mom- who used to bring Charlie chocolates when she visited my dad (I brought Charlie doughnuts). He will also be missed by the many many employees at Pelican, more than I can list.
Be at peace dear Charlie.
