“ I loved you mom so much. I’m sorry In your last year of life, I walked away. I just couldn’t handle your pain, and it was too hard for me to watch. I did love you with everything in me. Cass, Cody, and I loved you. I wanted my whole life to take your pain away and try to fix everything for you, but I couldn’t do that for you. I don’t fault you and I don’t blame you. Just know that I loved you so much, and I’ll live with the fact I walked away. But this was your choice and you found peace with it. You’ll be happy to know I’m choosing to make the best of my life and honor your memory with everything I do. You would have wanted me to be happy and live a great life. I’ll take care of Cassidy and Cody for you, just rest easy mom. I’ll raise hell down here for you now. I’ll carry that fighting spirit you had for you now.

“ Love you. I wish you only knew how much I thought what a strong woman you are. From the day I first met you until now. I wish you knew how much I loved you and would have been there for you if I only knew your pain. I know you are in peace now and are with Mom & Dad. Thank you for your sarcasm, humor, and all the memories. Love you always, Loree “ Cori I wish we all had more time to share together to laugh and cry and be there for each other!

In our busy lives we don't have as much time to share with the ones we grew up with!
I'm so sorry you were depressed and I wish I could have been there for you I'm not sure if I could have helped you but I regret not trying!
I will always remember you. I smile every time I think of the life we spent together from little kids until we became adults.
RIP Cori I hope you're in a better place and reunited with Mom and Dad.

I will never forget your beautiful laugh. It was unique and contagious. I was always so inspired by the way that you carried yourself. You exuded confidence and strength. You will be missed and forever loved. Give grandma and grandpa a hug and kiss for us.
