“ I am pretty sure this is the Dan Sugarman who was a classmate of mine at the Univ of Illinois school of medicine, graduation 1976. A very smart guy and great person. I am not surprised to see in the comments from his former patients, that they loved him. Daniel G Malone MD

“ So very sorry for your loss. Dan was my Cardiologist and a great friend. He was there for me during some severe heart issues. We kept in touch after he retired and went out for lunch as our health allowed and then kept in touch by phone. His health paralleled my daughter's almost to the day and medications were almost always the same. They both passed within a week. I truly share your family's grief. May he rest in peace with God!

“ *Dr. Sugarman took care of several members of my family. He was funny and kind, and most of caring.
He would check my mom's pulse everytime he would see her volunteering at the hospital. Still beating in rhythm! Amazing! Also encouraging.
My sympathies to the family. May the Lord comfort you in your time of sorrow.*

“ I first met Dan when we were Senior Assistant Residents at Mass General Hospital in 1978 - 1979. He was already a funny and iconoclastic guy back then. I went on to a Cardiology fellowship and Dan went into an Internal Medicine practice. We reconnected at a cardiology meeting about 10 years later - he had decided to become a cardiologist leading him to attend the meeting. I was very happy when he went into practice in our region and especially glad when he and his colleagues in Mooresville joined the Sanger Clinic. Over the years Dan and I shared a number of patients. In addition to appreciating his excellent medical skills, his patients loved the way he respected them and treated them as people, not just patients. My sympathies go out to the Sugarman family on the loss of a special and much-loved man.

“ All the golden boys who knew Dan were always glad to see him and recap recent activities! He was a delightful man that we all enjoyed sharing breakfast meetings at his table. He will be missed.
