“ Happy Birthday, my dear friend. No, your birthday didn't fall on Thanksgiving this year, but I do miss the feast you used to make for Thanksgiving! Even if it was for just the 2 of us and whoever wanted to stop by. You were always so generous to me and to others. I want you to know I miss you friend. I'm so sorry I didn't know you were so sick . It breaks my heart that you are now gone. Such wonderful memories I have of our trips to NH, our nights out in Waterbury and our days of working at the restaurant where we first met. We had a ball and I wouldn't change a thing. We were crazy, but we had fun. I will never forget you. Rest In Peace, Debbie. I love you! Xoxo

“ Baruch dayan emes...I am hearing this news as I am in living in Israel now. But when I lived in America Debbie was one of my roommates. We were very close, as Lisa and Daddy Schriver will remember. I am so sorry for you all. We had terrific times together, I never had more fun than a time with Debbie doing just regular events. Her fun cars, always a story and her mail jobs always kept us entertained. Since I don't know the details, I hope her passing was painless and she is enjoying olam haba. If anyone would like to mail me, please do. filosofy@hotmail.com. With warmest regards and blessings from The Holyland, Crystal

“ I’ve known Debbie since we were in first grade and Wilby and regrettably lost touch; the news of her passing is heartbreaking. She is a true natural beauty, as much inside as out. May God rest her soul, and my deepest condolences to all she touched.
