“ Jason was a dear friend of mine. He was a quiet, private person and not many got to know him well. I count myself blessed to be one of the few.

Jason loved anything to do with electronics.

He was like a kid in a toy store talking about the latest new thing.

His interest went deeper, as he spent much time reading to get a deeper understanding of how it all worked.

Jason also enjoyed cooking. His specialty was steak and potatoes, but he was hands down the winner at creating new dishes!

You can't talk about Jason, without mentioning his love of music!

Classic Rock was his main jam. Without hesitation he could tell you the lyrics to just about any song you named.

He could spend hours surfing the net, shooting pool, shooting his gun and shooting his bow.

Jason was very much a loner, but those of us he let in, discovered a wonderful man.

I will treasure my memories of Jason. — Jennifer
