I can picture you running with Vanna... No one should lose 2 of there sweet babies in such a short time. I know that you are both together. I finally got my sweet boy. “Liam's arrival into such a loving family had been eagerly anticipated by his parents as well as his sister Kiki. However, God had planned a different path for him to follow. Although his time on earth was fleeting, the love for him by family and friends was not. We will always love and miss his presence here with us but I pray that the family finds some comfort in knowing that God has a plan even if he hasn't revealed it at this time.

“Liam... I am not sure if God has told u just yet. But you are so very much loved. Holding u in my arms I felt so much peace. I was looking forward to so much with you. The first thing I thought seeing u was how absolutely perfect u were. To me . U looked just like your Mommy. I still cant believe your gone. You filled my heart sweet boy. I am reminded of one of my favorite scriptures. Corinthians 4:18 and I have to hold that promise close to my heart and have peace in knowing that what is unseen is that you did leave us but instantly were in the arms of Jesus. Surrounded by angels singing and I am certain rocked every night by your beautiful Grandmother that was not only my Mom Liam. But my best friend. You will never have a day without laughter as you share heaven with your big sister. You will never feel alone or unloved. You are already so missed here sweet boy. Your Mom , my sister doesnt see the strength she carries but she loves u so very much. And your Daddy picked out the most perfect song for you and him called "Boy". There will never be a single day I dont think of u. But I have to believe that one day you will be in my arms again. I only new u for a few moments. But u will forever be in my heart. Sweet Dreams sweet boy and God Bless
