“ I was so shocked to read this obituary, I was not aware that Lynn had passed. What a sweet, caring soul. I worked with her and I can attest to the care and love she gave to each patient. The devotion she showed to her family, especially her grandchildren. She even donated items to the activity department at the nursing home, quietly of course, as was in her nature. Certain alert and oriented residents she would take out for visits and events. She was a damn good nurse and cared for those most vulnerable. She almost never said a negative thing about someone, but you saw on her face how she felt! She knew what was right and what was wrong and that drove her. Lynn was a woman of integrity and tremendous warmth. She loved to laugh and joke around! Many times I caught her laughing til she could hardly breathe she was so tickled by something. Of course, nothing can touch the love she felt for her fella. She got misty eyed talking about him, or when he'd come see her at work. They had such a tight bond together. I'm so sorry to hear that she's gone but she won't be forgotten. Bless you, Lynn. You made your world a much better place.
