“ I always remember Richard as a great guy and fun to be with. I had a chance meeting with him in the late 60's. We were rearming our nuclear submarine with torpedoes at the Naval Weapons Station which was located on the Cooper River just above Charleston. As we were being bused to Charleston, I met Richard on the way out as he was the guard at the main gate. To this day I remember how good he looked in his Marine uniform. He must have done a good job because that weapons depot was never attacked!
