“ Steve,
I spent my youth watching you race. You and your brother Mike were always my favorite race car drivers and I cherish those memories of rushing down to the front stretch to get a picture with you and the team every summer. Hopefully the tracks in heaven are smooth and fast, with the victories coming often. Rest in paradise, cousin. You will be missed.

“ Neighbor. Friend. Racer.

All it took was 5 minutes and you knew what was important to Steve - family and fast cars. I met him the day I moved in to my apartment, six months ago, and yet it felt more like six years. I looked forward to seeing Steve every day and of course we'd make small talk about the race from the night before or the one that we were both watching on a Sunday afternoon.

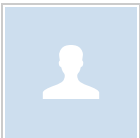

I always enjoyed coming home a race weekend, knowing I'd see Steve on the patio and would get to share about the highlights from my trip. He'd reminisce about wins and successes from the past but he was most excited to share about his family and the progress that he was making on the road to recovery. The day he brought home the Camaro was the happiest I'd seen him. Telling a racer that he can drive again is like Christmas morning.

I know he's dropping gears and burning rubber on the streets of gold - racing to win there's no doubt.

I'll miss you friend.

“ Steve was my beloved nephew. He was born when I was 17, and I loved him so much. We’ve lived apart for a long time, but just recently got to live near again. He sure loved racing and his wife and daughter. May the Lord take you in his arms and comfort you. I’ll miss you.
